HISTORY

The town of Deer Park is famous for being the original home, and namesake of, Deer Park Water, one of the oldest bottled water companies in America. Water from the spring, which gushes forth 150,000 gallons a day, has been bottled and sold as Deer Park spring water since 1873. The original spring, which is not open to the public, was bought in 1993 by the Perrier Group of America and now belongs to Nestle.

During the 1800s, this small town east of Oakland was a favorite resort for the wealthy and famous in the Baltimore-Washington area. The Deer Park Hotel opened on July 4, 1873. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, people high-tailed it there by train and horse in the summer to what was once one of the fanciest resorts in the country. A handful of rental cottages were built on the hotel grounds which is where President Grover Cleveland and his new bride, Frances Folsom, honeymooned.

As the automobile gained momentum and train travel waned in popularity, Deer Park began to lose its luster. The stock market crash of 1929 helped lead to the hotel ceasing operations that year. While the hotel was razed in 1942, a marker commemorates its former site.

Kitzmiller is the take-out for a thrilling section of whitewater: the Gormanian to Kitzmiller Section of the North Branch of the Potomac River. This section is to be attempted by people with the necessary skills, equipment and experience.

The town of Kitzmiller offers several facilities for rent by groups or organizations including a large picnic shelter adjacent to the Botanical Garden featuring a playground and a large grill. The Town also hosts their annual Kitzmiller Homecoming every July which features a car show, cornhole tournament, volleyball tournament, horse drawn carriage rides, parade, fireworks, and more family fun activities. kitzmillermd.org

HISTORY

Settlement in Kitzmiller predates at least the Civil War. The town sprang up around the woolen mill that Ebenezer Kitz-mill built in 1853. The period between 1900 and the end of World War I saw the greatest expansion in Kitzmiller, both commercially and in terms of population. The addition of the railroad in the 1880s brought a lumber boom, and coal mining became the town's economic mainstay around the turn of the century. At its peak, Kitzmiller boasted 1,800 people, a movie theater, bank, three barber shops, a dentist, two doctors, three groceries, two dry goods stores, a beauty parlor and a pharmacy.

For years, the rising waters of the Potomac River threatened the town's existence and, unfortunately, a flood in March 1924 nearly destroyed Kitzmiller. The town bounded back, however, to mark the installation of an electric light system and the paving of its streets with a parade the following year. To stem the flood threat, the Army Corps of Engineers tore down a block of homes and the movie emporium to widen the river and build levees in 1963.

The majority of commercial buildings in Kitzmiller were once found on both sides of River Street. Of those that remain, the former two-and-a-half story Kaufmann and Fisher's Store is likely the oldest (c. 1900). The former Kitzmiller Bank is a two-story brick building built in 1912 on the corner of East Main Street and River Street; much of the interior remains, including the teller's grill and the tile floor. There were once nine buildings on the east side of River Street. Only the Kitzmiller Library, a one-story frame building with a false front and plate glass windows, remains from this block of commercial buildings. Today, Kitzmiller remains a town of over 200 residents, the largest of the former coal mining towns along the upper Potomac.

LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS

The town of Loch Lynn Heights offers a variety of outdoor recreation opportunities which include three soccer fields, one softball field and a paved walking path around the town's athletic fields. North of the fields, you'll find the Loch Lynn Heights Wetlands Trail a 1 mile boardwalk and gravel walking trail through wetlands surrounding the Little Youghiogheny River. View a virtual reality tour of the Wetlands trail at visitdeepcreek.com.

The town is also home to local radio stations 104.5 KHJ, 92Q , 1050 WMSG & Z 95.9 and the Loch Lynn Heights Community Park.

HISTORY

Located about 8 miles south of Deep Creek Lake is Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland. Once known for its resort industry, the town is now a family-oriented community that 494 residents call home. Like Deer Park, Loch Lynn Heights became a popular resort area once the B&O Railroad came to town. Trains carried visitors from Baltimore, Washington or Pittsburgh to the station in Mountain Lake Park, just across from Loch Lynn Heights. The most popular destination, Loch Lynn Hotel was destroyed by a fire in 1918, and the adjacent casino - once home to an indoor swimming pool and bowling alley - was demolished in 1985.

Mountain Lake Park is also home to Simon Pearce Factory Outlet & Glassblowing (simonpearce.com) where you can view the glassblowers create or shop their store for glasswork, home decor, candles and more.

Riverside Grille (riversidegrille.us), formerly Long Branch Saloon, offers dine in or carryout for their American-style dishes.

The Bethel African Methodist Episcopal (A.M.E) Church recently underwent a restoration and relocation to Mountain Lake Park. Existing from the late Nineteenth Century through the early Twentieth Century, the Church was the only African American congregation in Garrett County, originally located on the corner of Fifth and High Streets in Oakland. The restoration and relocation aims to honor the forgotten Black citizens who helped develop Garrett County over a century ago. Renamed Bethel Center, the structure will highlight the stories and contributions of its people and will feature exhibitions, programs, and events. Learn more at mlpha.org/bethel-center
